INTRODUCTION

It has been suggested to the Author of the following pages to compile a small treatise, which without professing to be an abridgment of the Hindū Sacred Writings should convey in a concise form an Epitome of the information that has been obtained with respect to the leading dogmas of the Brahminical Superstition

When we reflect upon certain peculiarities of the Religious Worship practised by the Hindūs on its great antiquity on the fact that two thousand years before the Christian era it was as at the present day in full force that it witnessed the rise decline and fall of the Idolatry of Egypt and of the great Western Mythology of Greece and Rome that hitherto it has scarcely yielded in the slightest degree to the adverse influence of the Mohammedan race on the one hand or to European dictation on the other and that it exercises by its system of caste a powerful control over the manners, customs costume and social status of the entire Hindu community, it becomes a subject fraught with interest to every cultivated mind, and offers an affecting but curious example of the power of a hoary and terrible superstition in degrading and enslaving so large a portion of the human race

The sources from whence much of the material in this compilation are derived, are acknowledged in numerous notes

It does not come within the compass of this sketch to enumerate all the theological dogmas contained in the Sacred Writings of the Hindus, those only have been selected for annotation and remark which seem to have the most direct bearing on the object in view, in the elucidation of the worship of POWER—the Gnosticism of India

SACRED WRITINGS OF THE HINDŪS

THE origin of the Religious Worship of the Hindūs is lost in remote antiquity. For many ages anterior to the time of Menu their first Lawgiver all that has been handed down to us by oral tradition seems to confirm the hypothesis that they were worshippers of one God only whom they designated Drūhm Atma the Breathing Soul a spiritual Supreme Being coeval with the formation of the world without end everlasting permeating all space the beneficent disposer of events. The worship of the Hindūs at this period was probably simple and their ceremonies few. In process of time however the date of which cannot be correctly determined they appear to have adopted a material type of emblem of Drūhm a rude block of stone began to be set up this was the Phallus or as they termed it the LINGA. This emblem had reference to the procreative Power seen throughout nature, and in that primæval age was regarded with the greatest awe and veneration. To the influence of this image was attributed the fructifying warmth which brought to perfection the fruits of the earth and contributed to the reproduction both of man, animals, and everything that has life.

This simple and primitive Idolatry came, by degrees, to diverge into the adoration of the elements, particularly Fire, and at length developed itself by the institution of an emanation from Bruhm Atma in his Triune capacity, as Creator, Preserver or Saviour, and Destroyer. These attributes were deified under the names of Brahma, Vishnu and Siva, on whom were conferred three Gunas or qualities, viz, Rajas (passion), Sat (purity), and Tumas (darkness). This is the Trimurti *.

The next step towards the formation of a Pantheon was the institution of Avatas and Avantaras, i.e., greater and lesser Incarnations, by which one or other of the Triad imparted a portion of his divine essence both to men (generally Bahurdurs or heroes) and to brutes. The tendency to deify heroes,

* "Trimurti, 'three formed,' Murti signifying also an Image. Our vital souls are, according to the Védanta, no more than images or eidola of the Supreme Spirit"— and irrational creatures was not peculiar however to the Hindûs for the Assyrians Etruscans Greeks and Romans had the same custom as had also the Egyptians in a much more extended degree
As Res, vol. III

This system of Aralas was followed by an almost universal deification not only of the elements and the heavenly bodies but of every recognised attribute of the Supreme Being and the Evil Spirit Omnipotence Beneficence Virtue Love Vice Anger Murder all receive a tangible form until at the present time the Hindû Pantheon contains little short of a Million Gods and Demi-gods It is admitted however that to many of these they pay only relative honour

It is a little remarkable that of this host of Divinities especially in Bengal Siva is the God whom they are especially delighted to honour As the Destroyer and one who revels in cruelty and bloodshed this terrible deity who has not inaptly been compared to the Moloch of Scripture of all their Divinities suggests most our idea of the Devil It may therefore be concluded that the most exalted notion of worship among the Hindûs is a service of Fear The Brahmins say that the other Gods are good and benevolent and will not hurt their creatures but that Siva is power ful and cruel, and that it is necessary to appease him

Although this deity is sometimes represented in the human form in his images, it is not thus that he is most frequently adored. The most popular representation of him is unquestionably the Linga, a smooth stone rising out of another stone of finer texture, simulacrum membri virilis, et pudendum Muliebre. This emblem is identical with Siva in his capacity of "Lord of all"

It is necessary, however, to observe here, that Professor Wilson, while admitting that "the Linga is perhaps the most ancient object of homage adopted in India," adds, subsequently to the ritual of the Vedhas, which was chiefly, if not wholly, addressed to the Elements, and particularly to fire. How far the worship of the Linga is authorised by the Vedhas is doubtful, but that it is the main purport of several of the *Puranas there can be no doubt "†

The universality of Linga puja (or worship) at the period of the Mohammedan invasion of India is well attested. The Idol destroyed by Mahoud of Ghizni, notwithstanding the remarkable stories related by the Mohammedan chroniclers of a colossal image of human form which the Brahmins offered immense sums to save from destruction but which upon being shattered by a blow from Mahoud's mace disgorged a vast treasure of gold and precious stones of inestimable value—and the whole of which story Wilson proves is a pure fiction—was nothing more than one of those mystical blocks of stone called Lingas *.

The worship of Siva under the type of the Linga is almost the only form in which that deity is revered. Its prevalence throughout the whole tract of the Ganges as far as Benares is sufficiently conspicuous. In Bengal the Lingam Temples are commonly erected in a range of six eight or twelve on each side of a Ghaut† leading to the river. At Kalma is a circular group of one hundred and eight temples erected by the Rajah of Burdwan. These temples and indeed all those found in † Ghaut a "high place" applied to a pass such as the Laulpet pass where the traveller ascends from the campaign country to the table land of the Deccan also and in this instance signifying an artificial "high place" constructed either of stone or marble with an immense flight of steps leading down to the river. There are numerous Ghauls or Ghaats of this description on the banks of the Ganges where the banks are too high to allow the people to approach the stream with safety.

Bengal, consist of a simple chamber of a square form surmounted by a pyramidal centre , the area of each is very small The Linga of black or white marble, and sometimes of alabaster slightly tinted and gilt, is placed in the middle

Speaking of Siva and Pawátí, M de Langle says, “ Les deux divinités dont il s’agit, sont très souvent et très pieusement adorées, sous la figure du Linga (le Phallus des anciens) et de l’yoni, dans leur mystérieuse conjonction L’yoni se nomme aussi Bhaga (pudendum muliebres), Madheri douce, et Argha, vase en forme de bateau, dans lequel on offre des fleurs à la divinité, tels sont les noms de l’Adhera-Sacti (énergie de la conception vivifiée par le Linga) Quand cette déesse est représentée par le symbole que je viens d’indiquer, elle prend le nom de Devi (divine) plus communément que ceux de Bhavaní, de Pracriti, &c Suivant les théologiens Hindous, une vive discussion s’éleva entre Pavati (née des montagnes) et Maha-deva (le grand dieu), peu de temps après leur mariage, sur l’influence des sexes dans la production des êtres , ils convinrent de créer séparément une race d’individus Les enfants de Mahadeva furent nombreux, et se dévouèrent au culte de la divinité mâle , mais il manquoient d’intelligence et de force, et

Benares however is the peculiar seat of this form of worship The principal Deity Siva there called Isureswarra as observed already is a Linga and most of the chief objects of pilgrimage are similar blocks of stone No less than forty-seven Lingas are visited all of pre eminent sanctity, but there are hundreds of inferior note still worshipped, and thousands whose fame and fashion have passed away. It is a singular fact, that upon this adoration of the procreative and sexual Sakti (or power) seen throughout nature, hinges the whole gist of the Hindu faith, and notwithstanding all that has been said by half-informed persons to the contrary, this puja does not appear to be prejudicial to the morals of the people. "Among a people of such exuberant fancy as the Hindus," says Sir William Jones, "it is natural that everything should receive form and life. It is remarkable to what a degree their works of imagination are pervaded by the idea of sexuality. Indeed, it seems never to have entered into the heads of the Hindu Legislators and people that anything natural could be offensively obscene, a singularity which pervades all their writings, but is no proof of the depravity of their morals, thence the worship of the Linga by the followers of Siva and of the Yoni by the followers of Vishnu "*.

We find amongst the sacred paintings of the Hindus numerous representations of devotees, both male and female, adoring the Linga.

and a description of one of these pictures will suffice for them all. The domestic temple in which the emblem is usually placed is a Deval a term derived from Deva a deity and Halda a house or the "house of God." Indeed the natives have no such word as Pagoda for their temples which are always called Devals.

The worshippers are seated, dressed and arrayed in all her jewels as directed by the ritual. In her right hand she holds a Mala or Rosary of one hundred and eight round beads which is not visible as her hand is placed within a bag of gold brocade (Kamphal) called Gumpha to keep off insects or any adverse influence. Her sari or bodice is yellow her dress transparent muslin edged with gold (apertalra). In front of her are the five lamps called panchaty used in this Puja viz. Jari or spouted vessel for lustral water the Dipā or Cup to sprinkle the flowers which she has offered and which are seen on the Tinga and lastly the Cantha or sacred bell used frequently during the recapitulation of the prescribed Mantros or incantations. Nearly all the Pujas are conducted with the frequent ringing of bells and the object of this is twofold—first to wake up the attention at particular parts of the service and secondly to scare away malignant Dewtas and evil spirits, precisely, in fact, for the same reasons as they are used at the celebration of Mass in Roman Catholic countries

The Linga and the Earth are, according to the Hindus, identical, and the mountain of Meru is termed the "Navel of the Earth" Meru is supposed to be the centre of the universe, and is said to be 8,400 yojans high, 32,000 broad at the top, 16,000 at the bottom It is circular, and formed like an inverted cone This notion was not confined to India, for when Cleanthes asserted that the earth was in the shape of a cone,* this is to be understood only of this mountain, the Meru of India Anaximenes† said that this column was plain and of stone, exactly like Meru-pargwette (Pawati) of the inhabitants of Ceylon‡ "This mountain," says he, "is entirely of stone, 68,000 yojanas high, and 10,000 in circumference, and of the same size from the top to the bottom"

In India the followers of Buddha§ insist that this mountain is like a drum, with a swell in the middle, in the same form in fact as the Tomtoms used in the East In the west formerly the same opinion had been expressed by Lucippus and the Buddhists in India give that shape also to Islands. This figure is given as an emblem of the reunion of the powers of nature. Meru is the sacred and primeval Linga and the earth beneath is the mysterious Yoni expanded and open like the Padma or Lotus. The convexity in the centre is the navel of Vishnu and the physiological mysteries of their religion is often represented by the emblem of the Lotus where the whole flower signifies both the earth and the two principles of its fecundation. The germ is both Meru and the Linga the petals and filaments are the mountains which encircle Meru and are also the type of the Yoni. The four leaves of the Calyx are the four vast regions turning towards the four cardinal points. According to the two geographical systems of the Hindüs the first or more ancient is (as set forth in the Puran) the Earth described as a convex surface gradually sloping towards the borders and surrounded by the ocean. The second and more modern system is that adopted by their astronomers. The followers of the Puranas consider the Earth as a flat surface or nearly so their knowledge does not extend much beyond the old continent or the superior hemisphere.

but astronomers being acquainted with the globular shape of the earth, and of course with an inferior hemisphere, were under the necessity of borrowing largely from the superior part in order to fill up the inferior one

The leaves of the Lotus represent the different islands in the ocean around Jambu, and according to the Hindu system, the whole earth floats upon the waters like a boat. The *Argha of the Hindus and the Cymbium of the Egyptians are also emblems of the earth

* The three words Amba, Nabbi and Argha seemed to have caused great confusion among the Greek mythologists, who even ascribe to the earth all the fanciful shapes of the Argha, which was intended at first as a mere emblem. Hence they represented it in the form of a boat, of a cup, or of a quoit with a boss in the centre sloping towards the circumference, where they placed the ocean—Agathem book i c r

Others described the earth as a square or parallelogram, and Greece was supposed to lie on the summit, with Delphi in the navel, or central part of the whole—Pind Pyth, 6 Eurip Ion v, 233

While the Jews, and even the early Christians, insisted that the true navel of the earth was Jerusalem, and the Mohammedans, Mecca

The Argha is a type of the A'dhara-Sacti, or Power of Conception, exerted and vivified by the Linga or Phallus, one and the same with the ship Argo, which was built, according to Orpheus, by Juno and Pallas, and according to Apollonius, by Pallas and Argos, at the instance of Juno—Orph Argon, v, 66, Apoll, lib ii, 5, 1190 As Res, vol iii and of the Yoni. The Argha or Cymbium signifies a vessel cup or dish in which fruits or flowers are offered to the deities and ought to be in the shape of a boat though many are oval circular or even square.

Isurra or Baeclus is styled Argha Nautha or Lord of the boat shaped vessel and Osiris the Isurra or Baeclus of Egypt according to Plutarch was commander of the Argo and was represented by the Egyptians in a boat carried on the shoulders of a great many men. The ship worshipped by the Sweri according to Tacitus was the Argha or Argo and the type of the puerum muliebrem.

The Agha or Yoni with the Linga of stone is found all over India as an object of worship. Flowers are offered to it and the water which is poured on the Linga runs into the rim which represents the Yoni and also the fossa navicularis and instead of the Linga Isurra is sometimes represented standing in the middle as Osiris in Egypt.*

Plutarch has said of the Egyptians that they had inserted nothing into their worship without a reason nothing merely fabulous nothing superstitious as many suppose but their institutions have either a reference to morals or something useful in life. The mass of mankind lost sight, however, of morality in the multiplicity of rites, as it is easier to practise ceremonies than to subdue passions, so it was in India and Egypt

In the course of investigating the ceremonies of the Hindus, and in attempting to elucidate their meaning, it will be found necessary to draw an analogy between them and those of the Egyptians. The resemblance is very striking, they mutually serve to explain each other. When the Sepoys, who accompanied Lord Hutchinson in his Egyptian expedition, saw the temple at Hadja Silsil they were very indignant with the natives of the place for allowing it to fall into decay, conceiving it to be the temple of their own god, Siva, a fact, to say the least of it, no less singular than interesting.

The annihilation of the sect and worship of Brahma, as the Iswarra or "Supreme Lord," is described at large in the Kasichandra of the Scanda Puran, where the three powers are mentioned as contending for precedence. Vishnu at last acknowledges the superiority of Siva, but Brahma, on account of his presumptuous obstinacy, had one of his heads cut off by Siva, and his puja, or worship, abolished.

The intent of this legend is evidently to advance the claims of the Sawa sect, and if we substitute the contending facts for the battle of the Deutas or angels the fable will appear not quite destitute in historical fact nor wholly without foundation

The contention of schismatics from the same stock is always more inveterate than where the difference is total. The sect of Brahma claimed exclusive pre-eminence for the object of their choice as being the Creative Power the Iswarra or Supreme Lord. The two other sects joined against the followers of Brahma. The sect of Siva being the most powerful rendered theirs the established religion and claimed for Siva in his turn the exclusive title of Iswarra. The sect of Vishnu or Heri at length emerged from its obscurity and in concert with the adorers of Sacti (or the female power) destroyed and abolished the sect and worship of Siva and then Vishnu Heri (or Krishna) became the Iswarra or Supreme Lord and his worship became the established religion. This appears to have been the case in Egypt and notwithstanding that all affinity between the two systems has of late years been so strongly denied. If we substitute Osiris for Brahma Horus for Vishnu Typhon for Siva and Isis for the Sacti (or female power) the narrative agrees in every respect.

Again, the Sun is one of the forms of Vishnu (as Heri), Osiris and Horus are both said to have been identical with the Sun. The bull of Siva (Nandi) is the same as the bulls Apis and Mnevis of Memphis and Thebes.

He (Nandi) is the Vahan, or vehicle of this divinity, the Bull is the type of justice, whose body is Parameswarra, and whose every joint is virtue, whose three horns are the three Vedhs, and whose tail ends where Aa'herma, or injustice, begins. The Phallus of *Osiris was an object of worship, and is also the emblem of Siva.

Bacchus or Osiris was represented by an equilateral triangle, and the sectarian mark of the worshippers of Siva is this hieroglyphic. The worship of Bacchus was the same as that which is paid to Siva, it had the same obscenities, the same cruel

* "Now that Osiris is none other in reality than the great principle of fecundity is further evident from their manner of celebrating the Pramylia (a festival which has been before observed to bear a resemblance to the Priapeia of the Greeks), in which they carry about in procession and expose to public view a statue of the God with a triple-phallus, signifying hereby that he is a first principle, and that every such principle, by means of its generative faculty, multiplies what proceeds from or is produced by it"—Plutar de Iside et Osirides, xxxvi

bloodthirsty rites and the same emblem of the generative power

The Hindü sacrifices to Durga or Kali are a striking exemplification of this hypothesis. Mr Patterson informs us that When the stroke is given which severs the head of the victim from its body the cymbals strike up the tumtums beat the kranch or buccinum is blown and the whole assembly shouting smear their faces with the blood they roll themselves in it and dancing like demons accompany their dances with obscene songs allusions and gestures *

The Abbé Pluche mentions the same particulars of the assistants in the sacrifices of Dyonisius or Bacchus

Durga Kali or Maha Kali as the Sakti spouse or energetic will of Siva the destructive power bears a remarkable analogy with the Moloch of Scripture as well as with Typhon Saturn Dis Pluto and other divinities of the West. She is eternlty and under this attribute is often represented as trampling her lord Siva under foot, some times in paintings we see her sitting upon him in the act of coitus by which we are to understand that his worship will only last to the end of the world and then to pass away for ever. She is represented in coitu as typical of the creative power of Siva during the period of his administration, she being the medium, or Sacti, by which his will is carried into operation.

* As. Res. vol. viii

*Maha Káli delights in bloodshed and cruelty, and human sacrifices are very acceptable to her. In images and paintings she is portrayed as holding in her four hands the heads of victims streaming with blood. Over her shoulders is thrown a necklace of human skulls. She is seated on the sacred Padma, or Lotus, and wears a golden tiara on her head. Other representations there are of this terrible divinity, in which her features are distorted, hideous fangs project from her mouth, her fingers are armed with talons, like a bird of prey, while her body is entwined with serpents. To Maha Káli is attributed pestilence, rapine, lust, murder, and all the ills of humanity. She is the protectress of murderers, thieves, prostitutes, panders, and all evil doers. Under the name of Bowani she is the special patroness of the Thugs †. The buffalo is sacrificed to her in the absence of a human victim, while the

Brahmince bull and cow are held in the utmost veneration

When the attributes of the Supreme Being began to be viewed in the light of distinct individuals mankind attached themselves to the worship of the one or the other exclusively and arranged themselves into sects the worshippers of Siva introduced the doctrine of the eternity of matter In order to reconcile the apparent contradiction of assigning the attribute of creation to the principle of Destruction they asserted that the dissolution and destruction of bodies was not real with respect to matter which was in itself indestructible although its modifications were in a constant succession of mutation that the power must necessarily unite in itself the attributes of creation and apparent destruction that this power and matter are two distinct and co-existent principles in nature the one active the other passive the one male the other female and that creation was the effect of the mysterious union of the two

This Union is worshipped under a variety of names Bhava Bhavani Mahadeva Mahamaya &c. Thus the attribute of creation was usurped from Brahma by the followers of Siva to adorn and characterize their favourite divinity

This seems to have been a popular worship for a great length of time, out of which sprang two sects the one personified the whole Universe and dispensations of providence (in the regulation of it) under the name of Prakriti, and which we from the Latin call nature This sect retains the Sacti only, and were the originators of the Sactas sects, or worshippers of POWER, before and hereafter to be alluded to The other sect took for their symbol the Male emblem (Linga) unconnected with the female Sacti (or Yoni) There was also a third sect, who adored both male and female

According to Theodoret, Arnobius, and Clemens of Alexandria, the Yoni of the Hindus was the sole object of veneration in the mysteries of Eleusis* When the people of Syracuse were sacrificing to goddesses, they offered cakes in a certain form, called mullor, † and in some temples, where the priestesses were probably ventriloquists, they so far imposed on the credulous multitude who came to adore the Vulva, as to make them believe that it spoke and gave oracles The Phallic rites were so well-known among the Greeks that a metre consisting of Idolatry, and Phallic Idolatry too, consequently there will not appear anything so very startling in the supposition that the Ark of the Covenant contained a Phallus. We have seen that the Stone of Jacob was held in peculiar "veneration," was "worshipped" and "anointed" we know from the Jewish records that the Ark was supposed to contain a table of stone, and if it can be demonstrated that that stone was phallic, and yet identical with the sacred name Jehovah, or Yehovah, which, written in unpointed Hebrew with four letters, is IEVE or IHVH (the HE being merely an aspirate and the same as E), this process leaves us the two letters I and V (or in another of its forms U). Then, if we add the I in the U, we have the "holy of holies," we also have the Linga and Yoni and Argha of the Hindus, the Iswarra or "supreme lord," and here we have the whole secret of its mystic and arc-celestial import, confirmed in itself by being identical with the Linyoni of the Ark of the Covenant.

In Gregorie's Works,* pp. 120-21, is a passage to the effect that "Noah daily prayed in the Ark before the Body of Adam," &c., before the Phallus (Adam being the primitive Phallus, great Procreator of the human race).

"It may possibly seem strange," he says, "that this orison should be daily said before the body of Adam," but "it is a most confessed Tradition among the Eastern men that Adam was commanded by God that his dead body should be kept above ground till a fulness of time should come to commit it to the middle of the earth * by a priest of the Most High God.

This body of Adam was embalmed and transmitted from father to son till at last it was delivered up by Lamech into the hands of Noah. Again The middle of the Ark was the place of prayer and made holy by the presence of Adam's body. —Ibid p. 11 And so soon as ever the day began to break Noah stood up towards the body of Adam &c. &c and prayed

To return however to the tables of stone and to the Pillar of Jacob. Our mod rn notion of their form is a diagram or in other word two head-stones placed side by side. Now if we alter the position a little allowing one to recline horizontally surmounted by the other perpendicular we shall obtain a complete Linga and Yoni the sacred Name of the holy of holies before mentioned, and the Pillar or Mast in the Argha or boat as represented in the Ark of the Egyptians. The treatment of the Wings of the supporting doves on each side of this ark, conveys to us a pretty correct idea of where the Hebrews obtained their Cherubim or Seraphim only substituting a human head and body for the birds.

Upon consulting the Hebrew dictionary of Gesenius we shall find the word aron and aron signifying an ark a chest. In Genesis 1. 26 the word is used as a mummy chest or coffin for Joseph in Egypt. The ark of the covenant might in the same way be called the Coffin.

For the above reasons it is concluded that the object of veneration in the Ark of the Covenant of the Jews, was a Phallus.

qui vont se laver probablement avec du vin pour oindre leur corps et auprès d'elles un Faune, or Silène Ces deux femmes par cette préparation et cette lustration prescrite par la loi se disposent peut-être à assister aux mystères de Bacchus Nous ne rapporterons pas ici les indécences lubriques que se commettoient dans ces brutaux mystères et qui avec fondement ont été reprochées aux Gentils par les apologistes de la Religion Chrétienne '.

It has already been remarked that the secret of the Eleusian Mysteries is supposed to have consisted in the adoration of the Yoni, and from the representations of the initiation, just cited, bearing a striking analogy to "the Sri chakra, the ring or full initiation," as prescribed by the Tantra referred to by Wilson, even to the washing of the body with wine, leaves but little doubt of their identity of the rites

The probability that Isis was the Sacti (or POWER) of Egypt* has already been shown, and how far its adoration was known to the Assyrians is now to be considered

* " Now Universal Nature, in its utmost and most perfect extent, may be considered as made up of these three things, of Intelligence, of Matter, and of that which is the result of both these, in the Greek language called Kosmos—the first of these is the same with what Plato is wont to call

Palace of Nimroud of which examples may also be seen at the British Museum

The Assyrians do not appear however (like the Linyonijas of the Hindūs) to have worshipped the Sacti in union as we find it taught in the Tantras—at least no delineations of the male and female conjunction have been found as objects of worship

Gorius in his splendid work on Etruscan Antiquities gives a plate of two phalli bearing inscriptions the form of which objects resemble in too remarkable a degree the Hindū Linga to be omitted here but whether the square base from which these emblems rise is to be regarded as a yoni cannot readily be determined but the Hindū Lingas are frequently (as at Elephanta for example) mounted on a square base the base being the Yoni

Patterson has already been cited in confirmation of the assertion that the excitation of obscene mirth is a principal object in most of the Hindū Plays and Sacred Mysteries during the festival of Huli and the Dusserah and the numerous libidines interspersed among the engravings of d'Hancarville's edition of the Hamiltonian Collection of Vases prove that such was also the case in Greece and Etruria but from the circumstance of Parrhasius being the first painter who delineated the representations called libidines in that part of the world, and from the pediments of many of the most antique cave temples of India, containing sculpture of this description, one is led to the conclusion that the practice arose in the East

The clown and pantaloon of the modern carnival and our pantomimes are simply modified relics of antiquity precisely similar characters are found depicted on vases of both Greek and Etruscan workmanship, but to suit the taste of that age these actors to their grotesque masks and costumes added an enormous phallus of red leather,* which Suidas termed ithiphalli

The scenes represented on the ancient stage are continued to the present day throughout the East

The pediments of their temples, both ancient and modern, and their sacred cars are loaded with libidines, many of the combinations being of a most debasing character

But it must be borne in mind that these representations, whether of the character of theatrical performances or in that of sculpture, were regarded by the ancients as a part of their religious system, as it is now accepted by the Hindus of the present day

* Ruber Porectus —Hor

How far the general character and moral tone of the Hindûs will bear comparison with the dwellers in the capitals of Europe is a point which may safely be left to the decision of those travellers who have had an opportunity of visiting and residing among both communities *

Of the practices of the Ancients it is now more difficult to form an accurate judgment nor is it easy to determine the precise period when from the natural corruption of human nature religious observances gradually merged into licentious practices. It is well known that the most able and eloquent writers of antiquity flourished exactly at that period when these innovations had crept in and that they were most eloquent in denouncing them. Modern notions of the state of the manners and customs of these times are mainly derived from those very denunciations and such corruptions will always form an integral part of our nature.

We learn from the Vedhas the most

* One of the most accomplished Oriental scholars of our times to whom the public is indebted for a Telugu Dictionary and a translation of the Bible into the same language a resident for thirty years in India has recorded his judgment that, on the questions of probity and morality, Europeans (notwithstanding their boasted Christianity and morality) as compared with the Hindûs, have not much to boast of "

ancient and authoritative Scriptures of the Hindus, that "in the beginning the Breathing Soul (Brihm-Atma) moved upon the face of the waters" "This world," says Menu, "was a chaos, undiscernible altogether, when the Supreme Being, manifesting himself in five elements and other glorious forms, perfectly dispelled the gloom" As water is thus represented as the vehicle of creation, and the Padma or Lotus is a water plant from which each god at his birth emerges, it will be seen why this aquatic weed is held to be so peculiarly sacred in the eyes of the Hindus The Lotus is also a symbol of reproduction and generation, the flower of concealment, night, silence, mystery, and regarded with nearly the same veneration as the Yoni itself In the poetical language of the Hindus the Padma, under its various appellations, is frequently alluded to, and is held in peculiar sanctity, not only in Hindustan, but in Thibet, Nepaul, Siam, China, Burmah, and Ceylon, where temples and the images of the gods are decked with it

The Hindus adore the Lotus for other reasons, for example, because being able to reproduce itself without the assistance of the male pollen, it is a type of the androgynous or hermaphroditic character of__ the Deity For the same reason this plant was also held sacred by the Egyptian priests.

Payne Knight's* account of the Lotus is interesting He says The lotus is the nelumbo of Linnæus It grows in the water and amongst its broad leaves puts forth a flower in the centre of which is formed the seed vessel shaped like a bell or inverted cone punctuated in the top with little cavities or cells in which the seeds grow the orifices of these cells being too small to let the seeds drop out when ripe they shoot forth into new plants in the places where they were formed the bulb of the vessel serving as a matrix to nourish them until they acquire such a degree of magnitude as to break it open and release themselves After which like other aquatic weeds they take root wherever the current deposits them

Twelve Lingas are particularly mentioned in the Kedara Kālpa of the Nandi-upa purāṇ as being of peculiar sanctity In this Purāṇ Śiva is made to say I am omnipresent but I am especially in twelve forms and places

* A Dissertation on the Worship of Priapus, by R. Payne Knight Lond. 1786.

These he enumerates as follows—

1—Somanatha, in Samashtra, i.e., Surat

2—Malikijuna, or Sri Sala

3—Mahakala, or Ougcin.

4—Om'kala Shrine of Mahadeo (or Great God, a name of Siva) at Om'kala Mandatta

5—Amareswarra, in Ujaya, near the Hill

6—Vaidyanath, at Deoghur, in Bengal (This temple is still in existence, and a celebrated place of pilgrimage)

7—Ramasa, at Sethubandha, on the island of Ramissaram, between Ceylon and the Continent (Here the Linga is fabled to have been set up by Rama) This temple is still in tolerable repair, and one of the most magnificent in India, with a superb gateway one hundred feet in height *

8—Bhomasandkara, in Dakini, which is in all probability the same as Bhimeswarra, a Linga worshipped at Diacharam, in the Raja Mahendri district, and there venerated as one of the chief of the twelve

9—Not known

10—Tryambaka, on the banks of the Gomati (Goomtee?)

11—Gantamessa—(site uncertain)

* For a print of it, vide "Monuments de l'Hindoustan, par M. de Langle" Also, Daniel's Plates, Ind. Antiq.

12—Kedarésa or Kedaranath in the Himalaya The last has been frequently visited by travellers

In each of these temples the only image of Siva that attracted devotees was a Linga From this circumstance and from what has already been adduced there can be little doubt that the religion of the Saivas or followers of Siva (comprising a large majority of the Hindus of Bengal) is little more than a regular system of Phallic idolatry

According to his followers—and he has many even in the Deccan—Basud Basavá or Basurapa the supposed founder of the faith only restored the worship of Mahadeo and did not invent it This man was the son of Madija Ráya a Brahman and Maderi his wife inhabitants of Hinguleswur-pavati Agraharam on the west side of Sri Saila and both devout worshippers of Siva (Mahadeo)

In recompense for their piety Nandi the Sacred Bull of Siva was born on earth as their son becoming incarnate in that animal by the command of Siva who on learning from Nareda the decline of his religion and the neglect with which his Lingas were treated, manifested himself in a miraculous manner to these two devout persons. Siva in his human form and accompanied by

Pawati his Sacti, came forth from the great Sangameswarra Linga, thus proving that his divine essence even dwelt in these his emblems *

From this time the adoration of the Linga, which had languished, again came into vogue, and, as before observed, is the principal and most venerated of all the Hindu Idols of Bengal

But it is not only the votaries of Siva who adore their God under the symbolic form of the Linga, the Vaishnavas, or followers of Vishnu, use the same medium. They also are Lingayetts, one of the essential characteristics of which is wearing the Type on some part of their dress or person. The Linga is enclosed in a case either of silver or copper, and worn suspended from the neck, or on the arm as a bracelet (cada). These amulets are intended to avert the bad influence of the evil eye, and may be compared to the Fascinum of the Romans and the Jettatura of Modern Italy †

The Vaishnavas are divided into many sects. They comprise the Ghoculasthas the Yonijas the Ramanis and Radha-ballabis

The Ghoculasthas adore Krishna while the Ramanis worship Rama both have again branched into three sects—one consists of the exclusive worshippers of Krishna and these only are deemed true and orthodox Vaishnavas

Under the name of Gopala (the Shepherd) Krishna is doubtless the same as the pastoral Apollo who fed the herds of Admetus sur named Nomios by the Greeks The destruction of Python by Apollo signifies the purification of the atmosphere by the Sun from mephitic exhalations consequent on the deluge and Krishna's victory over the noxious Kalyanaga may be explained in the same manner In honour of his triumph games and sports are annually held in India [Huli] as the Pythic games were at stated times exhibited in Greece Like the Pythian serpent in the temples of Apollo Kalyanaga enjoys also his Apotheosis in those dedicated to the worship of Krishna. Nor are arguments wanted towards identifying Serpentarius, on our sphere, with his formidable foe, and the theatre of the warfare the river Yamuna, with the Via Lactea. Apollo and Krishna are both said to be inventors of the flute, one was disappointed by Daphne, who was turned into the Laurus, hence sacred to Apollo. Krishna's coy nymph was transformed into the Tulasi, alike sacred to him.

As Parameswarra, Krishna is represented of a black or dark blue colour. Now the Tulasi is the black Ocymun, and all animals or vegetables of a black or blue colour are sacred to him. His Linga also is always either black or dark blue, and may thus be distinguished from that of Siva, which is generally white.

This divinity, as Parameswarra is Jagan'-nauth (Juggernaut), or "Lord of the Universe," and it was under the wheels of his sacred car that so many misguided beings annually immolated themselves.

Krishna, from his known amorous propensities, is a peculiar favourite with the Hindu women, to which M. de Langle makes the following naïve allusion, in his description of the character of this divinity. "Au reste," he says, "on ne peut douter de son extrême penchant pour le beau sexe car outre huit femmes parmi lesquelles la favorite nommée Rādhā est célèbre par ses graces et par sa beauté il eut 16 mille concubines trouvées toutes vierges dans le palais de Bhoum demon (āzoura) à cinq têtes qu'il tua à cause de ses innoubrable forfaits. Suivant quelques theologiens Hindous Radha est une incarnation de Lakshmi femme de Vishnou incarné lui-même sous le nom de Krishna *

To return however to the Vaishnavas Another of their sects adore Krishna and his mistress Radha united. These are the Lingionijas whose worship is perhaps the most free of all the Pujas. A third the Radha-ballubhis dedicate their offerings to Radha† only. The followers of these last

She is an Avata or incarnation of Lakshmi or Camala the spouse of Vishnu the universal mother of Nature and the impersonation of female beauty. She is the type of religion and spiritual love to the deity. Her characteristics are set forth in the Gita Govinda and Gita Radhica Krishna the latter Poem bearing a most striking resemblance to the Canticles.

The loves of Krishna and Radha which in the writings of the Hindus are constantly adverted to are said to mean, in their emblematical theology the reciprocal attraction mentioned sects have adopted the singular practice of presenting to a naked girl the oblation intended for the Goddess, constituting her the living impersonation of Radha. But when a female is not to be obtained for this purpose, the votive offerings are made to an image of the Yoni, or emblem of the feminine POWER. These wor-between the divine goodness and the human soul, and are told at large in the tenth book of the Bhāgavat. In like manner is the Bhāgavat Gēta regarded by the Brahmins, though it apparently consists of a dialogue between Krishna and his follower Arjūn. We are informed that in this instance Krishna is to be regarded as the Supreme Being, Arjūn as the human soul. This mysticism abounds in all their writings, but is not peculiar to the Hindūs. It is questionable whether any of their sacred writings contain one-half of the mysticism to be found in the Apocalypse of St. John.

“The separate Sects or religious systems that we find among Hindūs should never be confounded. The creed that honours Vishnu-Krishna as the Beneficent Power is quite separate from the demon worship in which Siva-Mahadeva is adored, and beyond this is the Tantra system of Magic and the destroying Powers. Rukmenī is the wife, not mistress, of Krishna. The wedding is described in the Bhāgavat, which is a canonical scripture. In a later age Radha, the mistress, not wife of Krishna, is the heroine of a heretical work, the Dēvī Bhāgavat, or Tale of the good Goddess, and she is declared to be nature, the mother of all beings. The naked worship is quite separate, and appertains to the Tantrica or Black Magic. The Brahma Vairavartta Puran, the Kalica Puran, and some others are disowned by the orthodox Hindūs, as works of authority, who pin their faith on the Bhārrata, Bhāgavata, and Rāmāyan. All the other Puranas are rejected.”

shippers are called Yonijas in contradistinction to the Langayals or adorers of the Krishna (Vishnu) Linga

As the Sarras are all worshippers of Siva and Bovancee (Pavati) conjointly so the Vaishnavas also offer up their prayers to Laksmi Nayarana. The exclusive adorers of this Goddess are the Sactas

The cast mark of the Sarras and Sactas consists of three horizontal lines on the forehead * with ashes obtained if possible

* The question of Sectarian Marks seems to have engaged the attention of Maurice. He says "There was another remarkable symbol of Taut or Mercury prevalent in Egypt as well as in India. It was the letter T or in other words the cross, or Crux Hermis in which form we find many of the more ancient Pagodos of India as Benares and Mattira, erected and many of the old Egyptian statues as is well known to antiquaries are represented bearing this symbol in their hand or on their breasts. D'Hancarville and the generality of mythologists explain this symbol as referring to the gross physical worship to which the ancients were so greatly addicted and as an emblem of Jupiter Generator (or Priapus) or the deity in his creative capacity in Ancient Egypt and India, and which Mr Bruce frequently met with in his travels through the Higher Egypt and Abyssinia. I have elsewhere observed the very singular manner after which the Latin Vulgate and according to Louth probably the ancient copies of the Septuagint have rendered the original of that passage in Ezekiel ix. 4 "I will set a mark upon their forehead" rendering it in their version, "I will mark them on the forehead with the letter Tau" which affords room to suppose it was a symbol of a more sacred (phallic ?) import than is generally imagined" &c.—Maurice Ind. Antiq., pp 44 45 Lond. 1801 from the hearth, on which a consecrated fire is perpetually maintained. The adoration of the *Sacti is quite in accordance with the spirit of the mythological system of the Hindus. It has been computed that of the Hindus in Bengal, at least three-fourths are Sactas, of the remaining fourth, three parts are Vaishnavas, and one Sawas.

Independently of the homage paid to the principal Deities, there are a great variety of inferior beings, Dewtas, and demi-gods of a malevolent character and formidable aspect, who receive the worship of the multitude. The bride of Siva, however, in one or other of her many and varied forms,†

†In alluding to Bhavanî (Pavati) as distinguished by a variety of names implying Nature, and among others using that of Shacti (a word that is usually and in this treatise called Sacti), Paolino in his Voyages, p. 327, gives an account of the Magna Mater of the Hindus. "She changes," he says, "and transforms herself into a thousand shapes, and appears sometimes as a man and sometimes as a woman. Her votaries paint the Medhira" (in Bengal called yoni), "which is represented by two side strokes, and a red one in the middle" (on the forehead). "This mark represents the womb of Bhavanî," in its conventional form — Paolino's Voyage to Malabar is by far the most popular goddess in Bengal and along the Ganges

The worship of the female generative principle as distinct from the Divinity appears to have originated in the literal interpretation of the metaphorical language of the Vedhas in which Will or purpose to Create the Universe is represented as originating from the Creator and co-existent with him as his bride and part of himself. We read in the Rig Veda the following—

That divine spirit breathed without afflu-tion single with (Śradha) her who is sustained within him other than her nothing existed. Again First desire was formed in his mind and desire became the original one with matter, the source of error, is identified with Maya or delusion,* and co-existent with the Omnipotent, and his Sacti, his personified energy, his bride. According to Wilson, "these mythological fancies have principally been disseminated by the Puranas, and were unknown anterior to those writings." The whole subject is given in extenso in the Brahma-Vaivartta Puran (a Purana which is not considered orthodox), under the head of Prakrita Khanda, in which the legends having reference to the modifications of the female principle are narrated. It is further stated in this Puran, that Brahma, having determined to create the universe, became androgynous, male and female, the right half having the sex and form of a man, the left, that of a woman. In his images he is sometimes thus represented, and is then termed Ardnari. "This is Prakriti of one nature with Brahm, illusion, eternal, as the soul so is its active

* On the base of Minerva's statue at Sais, whom the Egyptians regarded to be the same as Isis, a goddess who bears so striking an analogy to the Hindū Prakriti or nature, there was this inscription "I am everything that has been, that is, and that shall be nor has any mortal ever yet been able to discover what is under my veil"—Plutar de Iside et Osiride, s ix.

energy as the faculty of burning is in fire. *

In another passage of the Sama Vedha it is said that Krishna being alone invested with the divine nature began to create all things by his own will which became manifest in Mula Prakriti

Wilson asserted † that Krishna is undoubtedly a very modern intruder into the Hindū Pantheon. In what sense the term modern is here used is impossible now to determine but the fact of Megasthenes ‡ having visited a temple of this divinity whom he calls Hercules at Mathura on the Jumna the Matura Deorum of Ptolemy sufficiently proves that the worship of this Divinity was instituted many years antecedent to the Christian æra. It is therefore presumed that Wilson spoke in the comparative degree and intended to imply that as compared with other portions of the Ritual the Vedas for example the deifica tion of Kṛishna is modern. However that may be, a worship which, like that of Kṛishna, has existed for two thousand years, may be fairly regarded as part of their religious system.

Although the adoration of the Sacti is authorized by some of the Puranas, the rites and formulæ are more clearly set forth in a voluminous collection of books called Tantras. These writings convey their meaning in the similitude of dialogue between Uma (or Siva) and Pavati.

The followers of the Tantras profess to consider them as a fifth Vedh, and attribute to them equal antiquity and superior authority*. The observances they prescribe have in Bengal almost superseded the original Ritual, but the question of their date is involved in considerable obscurity. From the practices described in some of the Puranas, particularly that of the Diksha, or rite of initiation, from the Agni Purân,

* Thus in the Siva Tantra, Siva is made to say, "The five scriptures issued from my five mouths, and were the East, West, South, North, and Upper—these five are known as the paths to final liberation. There are many scriptures, but none are equal to the Upper Scripture." Kulluka Bhatta, commenting on the first verse of the 2nd ch. Menu, says, "The Scrut is twofold, Vaidika and Tantrika, that is Tantra."

from the specification of formulæ comprising the mystical monosyllables of the Tantras in that and other similar compilations and from the citation of some of them by name in different puranas we must conclude that some of the Tantras are prior to those authorities

The Tantras are too numerous to specify them further but the curious reader will find them under the heads of Syama Rahasya Anandra Rudra Yamala Mandra Mahodahī Sareda Tilika and Kalika Tantras *

Although any of the goddesses may be objects of the Sakta worship and the term Sakti comprehends them all yet the homage of the Saktas is almost restricted in Bengal to the consort of Siva. The Varnis or Vamacharis worship Devī as well as all goddesses. Their worship is derived from a portion of the Tantras

According to the immediate object of the worshipper is the particular form of worship but all the forms require the use of some or all of the five Makaras †—Māṇsa Matsya dialects pronounced Jogi or Zogee and is equivalent to a secular nun as these women are subsequently supported by alms. The word from custom has become equivalent with Sewa and thus is exactly the same as Duti or Dutika (doo-ty-car). The books of morality direct a faithful wife to shun the society of Yogini, or females who have been adored as Sacti.

The Sacti system bears a striking affinity with Epicureanism. It teaches Materialism and the Atomic system of chance. (Compare the Awanda Tantra c. xvii with Lucretius lib. ii.)

The worship of women and the Sacti Homavids are grounded on passages in the Veda which Orthodox Brahmins regard as of doubtful authority. (Vide Rig Vedam, Bk. ii. c. viii. sections 13, 14 and attham, 8th pannam ricks B. 14 which contain the Sacti Homavanta &c.)

This method of adoring the Sacti is unquestionably acknowledged by the texts regarded by the Vanis as authorities for the impurities practised

The members of the sect are sworn to secrecy, and will not therefore acknowledge any participation in Sacta-Puja. Some years ago, however, they began to throw off this reserve, and at the present day they trouble themselves very little to disguise their initiation into its mysteries, but they do not divulge in what those mysteries consist

The Culanava has the following and other similar passages the Tantras abound with them

“ Many false pretenders to knowledge, is therein stated that the object of worship should be either “ A dancing girl, a female devotee, a courtesan, Dhobee woman, a barber’s wife, a female of the Brahminical or Sudra tribe, a flower girl, or a milk-maid. Appropriate muntrus are to be used. She is to be placed naked, but richly ornamented with jewels and flowers, on the left of a circle described for the purpose, with various muntrus and gesticulations, and it is to be rendered pure by the repetition of different formulas, being finally sprinkled over with wine by the peculiar mantra

“ The Sacti is now purified, but if not previously initiated, she is to be further made an adept by the communication of the Radical Mantra whispered thrice in her ear, when the object of the ceremony is complete. The finale is what might be anticipated, but accompanied throughout by muntrus, and forms of meditation very foreign to the scene ”—Wilson, As Res, vol xvii 225, on Hin Sects and who have not been duly initiated pretend to practise the Caula rites but if perfection be attained by drinking wine then every drunkard is a saint if virtue consists in eating flesh then every carnivorous animal in the world is virtuous if eternal happiness be derived from the union of the sexes then all beings will be entitled to it A follower of the Cula doctrine is blameless in my sight if he reproves those of other creeds who quit their established observances Those of other sects who use the articles of the Caula worship shall be condemned to a metempsychosis during as many years as there are hairs of the body

The Kauchillās are another branch of the Sactas sect their worship much resembles that of the Caulas. They are however distinguished by one particular rite not practised by the others and throw into confusion all the ties of female relationship natural restraints are wholly disregarded and a community of women among the votaries inculcated *

This sect appears in the Sankara Vijaya as the Uchchishkha Ganapatis or Hairamba sect who declare that all men and all women are of one caste and that their intercourse is free from fault. —Vide Ward's Works, vol. II, 5 on the above subject. —Wilson on Hin Sects vol xvii

On the occasions of the performance of divine worship the women and girls deposit their julies, or bodices, in a box in charge of the Guru, or priest. At the close of the rites, the male worshippers take each a julie from the box, and the female to whom it belongs, even were she his sister, becomes his partner for the evening in these lascivious orgies *

Dancing formed an important part of the ceremonial worship of most Eastern peoples. Dancing girls were attached to the Egyptian temples and to that of the Jews. David also, we are told, "danced before the Lord with all his might." And to every temple of any importance in India we find a troupe of Nautch or dancing girls attached.

These women are generally procured when quite young, and are early initiated into all the mysteries of their profession. They are instructed in dancing and vocal and instrumental music, their chief employment being to chant the sacred hymns, and perform nautches before the God, on the recurrence of high festivals. But this is not the only service required of them, for besides being the acknowledged mistresses of the officiating priests it is their duty to prostitute themselves in the courts of the temple to all comers and thus raise funds for the enrichment of the place of worship to which they belong

Being always women of considerable personal attractions which are heightened by all the seductions of dress jewels accomplishments and art they frequently receive large sums in return for the favours they grant and fifty one hundred and even two hundred rupees have been known to be paid to these syrens in one night Nor is this very much to be wondered at as they comprise among their number perhaps some of the loveliest women in the world.

It has been said already that among the classes from which a medium for Sacti is selected is the courtesan and dancing-girl grade they are indeed more frequently chosen for this honour than the others before enumerated A Nautch woman esteems it a peculiar privilege to become the Radha Dea on such occasions It is an office indeed which these adepts are on every account better calculated to fulfil with satisfaction to the sect of Sacteyas who require their aid than a more innocent and unsophisticated girl

is the adoration of POWER,* which the Hindus typify by the Yoni, or womb, the Argha or Vulva, and by the leaves and flowers of certain plants thought to resemble it Thus in the Anandra Tantram, c vi, verse 13, we find an allusion to the Aswattha, or sacred fig-tree (the leaf of which is in the shape of a heart, and much resembles the conventional form of the Yoni, to which it is compared)

“ Aswattha patra sadrusam Yonáciáram cha bhàjanam

Támra, rūpya, suvaruaistu rachitam tal prasasyate ”

In Ananda Tantram, cap vii 148, and other passages, reference is made to Bhaga-mala She appears to be the goddess who presides over the pudendum muliebre, i e, the deified Vulva, and the Sacti is thus personified

In the mental adoration of Sacti a diagram is framed, and the figure imagined to be seen inside the Vulva This is the Adha-mukham, or lower face, i e, the Yoni,

* In Egypt we learn that Typho sometimes bore the name Seth, “ by which they mean the Tyrannical and overbearing POWER, or, as the word frequently signifies, the POWER that overturns all things, and that overleaps all bounds ”—Plutar de Iside et Osirides, xxxvi wherein the worshipper is to imagine (mantapam) a chapel to be erected *

All the forms of Sacti Puja require the use of some or all of the five—Makaras † Mansa Matsya Madya Maithuna and Mudra—that is flesh fish wine women and certain mystical twistings or gesticulations with the fingers

Such are some of the peculiar features of the worship of POWER (or Gnosticism) ‡ and which combined with the Linga Puja (or adoration of Phallus) constitutes at the present day one of the most popular dogmas of the Hindūs.

† They are enumerated in the Syama Rakshya "Mudra and Maithuna are the five-fold Makras which takes away all sin.

‡ Simon Magus is supposed to be the founder of Western Gnosticism he it was who corrupted the Nicolaitanes (vide Apocalypse, ii. 6 15). They held sensual pleasure to be the true creed.

In the Foreign Quarterly Review p. 159, 580 the following passage occurs — "The grand object of the magic of the Christians in the middle ages was to obtain the command over the services of demons such were the pursuits of witches. But these were always looked upon as criminal. The belief that men possess the power to control spirits was not peculiar to the Gnostic Christians. The liturgies of the Roman and Greek churches contain several rules on these subjects."

The Memoirs of Scipio di Ricci of Pistoja reveal some remarkable facts plainly demonstrating that Sacteyya Ideas had found their way into the monasteries and convents of Italy in the latter part of the last century
